One of Hocking's Boys.

Hocking County boys always have won high honors in College as they do everywhere else, for that matter. Mr. Clyde F. Beery of Marion Twp., who has been a student at the Ohio University for several years is winning a high place among the students of that well known institution. At the recent annual literary contest among the three societies connected with the university, he was the debator for the Athenian Society, and by unanimous consent his production was the ablest of the evening, both in thought and delivery. The address was marked by originality and depth of thought and was in a manner that won for the young orator the warmest praises. Mr. Beery will continue his course in college until he graduates, and from what we have learned of his record in college as a student and gentleman, we predict for him a highly successful career in what ever course in life he may choose.

A CYCLONE

Destroys the Louisiana state Penitentiary.

Baton Rouge, La., July 6.—

One of the most terrific and terrible storms ever known in the history of this country has just passed over, leaving a trail of death, destruction and horror in its wake. In these days, when the cyclone is a matter of every day occurrence, one is not given to surprise at the announcement of ordinary storm visitations, but when such a calamity as this comes, the heart is appalled, the mind almost fails to grasp the awful reality, the sickening revelation of the details.

When men are penned in and helpless, even though the confinement be a result of their own shortcomings, the horror of such a death as this has added feature. The storm that has just visited this section hurried to death a number of convicts, now reported at fifty. One hundred and fifty more are reported as being injured. Among the results of the awful storm is the reported destruction of the gubernatorial mansion. This is the greatest calamity for years and the gloom is widespread. The scenes at the State prison where the two score or more of helpless men were hurled and crushed to death were frightful. There was no warning, no time to battle for life. There was nothing to do but simply surrender to death, grim, terrible, in stant.

The work of reducing the injured was pushed with all possible dispatch, and they are being well cared for by sympathetic hands and hearts.

The great regret depicted on every countenance is that so many of the poor fellows who are dragged out are past all earthly aid.

The calamity, following as it does the great railroad disasters of the past few days, almost impels a startled people to cry out in agony, "When will all this end?" Louisiana has had many gloomy and terrific experiences. She has been acquainted with death in many forms, but this catastrophe overlaps and towers above all her former experiences in the magnitude of its horror.

This is a sad day for Baton Rouge.

Wrecks, Two.

Horrible in Their Nature.

On last Friday, July 3rd, a terrible rail road disaster occurred at Ravenna, O. The passenger due at 2:23 was 53 minutes late and pulled in on the main line when it should have been side tracked to make clear for the fast freight. Conductor sent men back to flag freight but they did not go far enough. As a consequence the freight came rushing through and completely escaped the passenger train. Nineteen people were killed outright and 23 badly injured. The wreck caught fire and those not otherwise badly hurt were so pinned in the wreck that it was impossible to rescue them before they were burned to death. A mass of human flesh was heaped upon the pilot of the freight engine. Heads and limbs were severed from the bodies, and all presented a most sickening sight as the flames leaped and lapped about them. Soon the city fire department were at the scene and extinguished the flames. The dead and injured were dragged out of the terrible heap and placed in a hotel. A corps of physicians were soon in attendance and the dead were laid out in rows for identification. Some, however, were so badly burned that they could not have been recognized.

Another terrible accident occurred on the 4th near Wheeling W. Va., on the Kanawha & Michigan Ry. Two coaches and a baggage car crashed through a 40 ft. trestle. It was an excursion train with near 200 people aboard most from Charleston going out to spend the 4th. Fifteen were killed, and many injured. The trestle was burned by some cause and the first heard was a crash. The engine jerked loose, and escaped but the coaches went down the rear falling across the front coach, completely demolishing it. The accident happened far from any town or house and it was with difficulty that aid could be had. The engine ran to the nearest station and secured medical aid and telegraphed for the relief corps. The scenes were terrible. Women, with half the body crushed and pinned fast, lay screaming for help, when help was impossible without the use of machinery. It seems that the terrible hand of fate has been most severely loosened of late when we look upon the horrors of these two wrecks added to the horror of the cyclone Monday in Baton Rouge.

Walks from an upstairs Window and Miraculously Escapes Serious Injuries.

On last Saturday night, Hugh Moore, son of Rev. D. R. Moore of here, fell from a second story window to the brick walk below, while walking in his sleep, receiving painful, but not serious injuries. Hugh had spent the 4th at the Lancaster Camp ground and he with other young boys were enjoying themselves leaping from the windows of some of the cottages to the verandas below. This sport seemed to make such a lasting impression on the mind of the young man that it followed him to his dreams. Rev. Moore and wife were from home. The girl heard some one between one and two o'clock Sunday morning at the door bell. After some hesitancy the door was opened and the nightly intruder proved to be Hugh who said he was hurt. The physicians and neighbors were summoned and found several teeth knocked loose, a shoulder and hip badly bruised. The truth developed that he had deliberately risen in his sleep thrown open the shutters and leaped from the window to the brick pavement below, a distance of perhaps 15 ft. Fortunately he was not badly hurt but most rudely and suddenly awakened. Rev. Moore and wife were sent for at Lancaster and arrived here Sunday P. M. Hugh is rapidly recovering from his injuries and will soon be out again.

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Ohio.

Taxation.

SHORTLY after the 1st of January, 1892, a proposition shall be submitted to the electors of this state on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1891, to amend Section 2 of Article XII, of the Constitution of the State of Ohio, so that it shall read as follows:

ARTICLE XII.
Sec. 2. There may be passed which shall tax by a uniform rule all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stock, joint-stock companies, or otherwise; and all real and personal property according to their true value thereof in money. In addition thereto, laws may be passed taxing rights, privileges, franchises, and such other subject matters as the legislature may deem proper, but no law shall be passed imposing a tax on any public charity, public property, or other property, nor, by general laws, be exempted from taxation; and the value of all property so exempted shall from time to time be ascertained and published as may be directed by law.

Sec. 2. At such election, those electors desiring to vote for such amendment may have placed upon their ballots the words "Taxation Amendment—Yes," and those opposed to such amendment may have placed on their ballots the words "Taxation Amendment—No."

Sec. 3. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January, 1892.

Wm. VANDEMARK, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Wm. VANDEMARK, President of the Senate.

Adopted April 24, 1891.
